

TRAINEE BULLETIN

December 2010

Message from the President

Dear Trainees,

Towards the end of a year, the College is looking back on the training of our specialists. With the introduction of the tools from RCOG. assessment assessment is more competent based than just on number. Competence is not just on performing the procedure in a correct manner but to fully understand the indications, precautions, risks and benefits. Nevertheless, performing a certain number of a procedure is still expected for certain skill in addition to competence assessment. Low forceps delivery is among one of those skills that in addition to competence, 30 deliveries expected before are becoming a qualified specialist. Since the College has decided that this skill should be maintained, it is essential for trainees to achieve competence before their exit to be a specialist. The recent refresher course on the teaching of low forceps organized by the College hopefully will help our trainers be able to teach better. On the other hand. trainees need to take the initiative to facilitate the learning.

Thanks to the effort of Dr. K.M. Chow, to ease your mind, Family Planning training will be offered to all trainees before their MRCOG examination.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the trainee representatives sitting in the College Education Committee in giving us feedback about your training. I am hoping to hear more voices from trainees, not just about the training, but about the College.

I have to thank our trainers despite the strain on manpower are still offering learning experience to good trainees. For the trainees, your continuous enthusiasm in obstetrics and gynaecology would be the pushing force to keep the momentum in learning and to excel in your training. burning heart would be the driving force of the trainers and the future of obstetrics and gynaecology rely on you.

Wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!
